

SOCIETY

The first week in June will be ushered in with a great many beautiful weddings. Most of the ceremonies will be witnessed by large companies of guests, and will be followed by brilliant receptions, but there are still others that will be quietly celebrated, with only the immediate families present for the wedding and guests invited later for the reception.

Miss Minerva Haskins, whose wedding to Thompson Kingford, of Oswego, N. Y., son of Thomas S. Kingford, of that place, will be married on Wednesday evening at half past six o'clock. The ceremony will take place in the lovely formal garden at "Meadow Brook," the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fox Jeffress, near Towson's Bluff. It will be the most beautiful of all the June weddings, and several hundred guests have been invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffress are giving a garden party to-morrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at "Meadow Brook" in honor of Miss Kingford. Miss Higgins, Miss Lund and Miss Cordill, who are in Richmond for the Kingford-Haskins wedding.

Owing to illness in the family, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. T. Myers have recalled the invitations to the wedding reception of their daughter, Frances Colquhoun, and James McDonald Wellford. The ceremony will take place very quietly at the home of the bride's parents, 913 West Franklin Street, on Wednesday evening. Invitations have also been recalled by Mrs. A. Ashton Clarke for the reception that she was to have given in honor of Miss Myers on Tuesday evening.

Another prominent wedding of interest is that of Miss Katherine Siger Hoge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Hoge, to Andrew Jamieson, of Danville. The ceremony will be a quiet one, and will take place at the home of the bride's parents, 1601 West Grace Street, to be followed by a reception at half past 6 o'clock.

The marriage of Miss Rachel Doddridge Howerton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Howerton, and Mulford Stought, takes place in Lexington at 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening in the Presbyterian Church there.

There are numerous other ceremonies of equal importance that will be celebrated this month. Churches and homes will be hung with bright-colored flowers on each occasion, and many handsome gowns will be noted.

At the Art Club.
A review of the work attained and completed by the classes at the Art Club School demonstrates that the year now just closing has been the most fruitful and valuable of any in the history of the club. The advance made in all lines has been most remarkable, and in none has the progress shown greater value than in modeling from life. Miss Edith Taggart shows several specimens, both draped and nude, which indicate by actual performance the ability to handle clay well in advance of anything of the past in the experience of the club classes. A draped figure demonstrates this young girl's ability perhaps more fully than the two life figures in the nude. Among the performances in crayon and pencil, a sketch from life, done by Miss Louise H. Blair, aged seven, is perhaps the most notable, showing as it does good form and excellent drawing.

pupils of the recently concluded scholastic year will assist the children in their endeavors in this direction. The lawn party will take place in the Art Club grounds, 521 West Grace Street. C. D. C. Excursion.

There will be dancing and music on the moonlight excursion to be given Thursday night to Dutch Gap by the Richmond Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and supper will be served by a committee of members. Blenner, McCarthy, Bettie M. Ingles, T. H. Ellett, Hampton Fleming, John Wyatt, L. C. Daniel, P. J. White, Dana Rucker, D. P. Edwards and Miss Sallie Anderson.

The first story above the ground is nearly complete as far as marble work is concerned. This will be a fireproof structure, and when complete will be four stories high, and probably cost
